DEATH OF RICHARD JEFFERIES.

Richard Jefferies, author of the amateur poet story "My Head," and other charming sketches, has been ill so long that his death comes at last as a surprise.

A visitor to his wife, day before yesterday, gives an extremely pathetic account of "my head," he says, "expecting to once more speak with him, but found him lying dead. I saw him with Mrs. Jefferies and his little Phyllis. It was a pitiful sight to see them thus the poor old face, God help them! "When I and a new flower in the garden," said the child, "I cannot show it to papa, now.

Mamma, mamma, I hope Tommy Burdell won't tell everybody I have got no papa now."

All through his last days his wife with him and night. He was not a hired nurse.

Their only servant was a young country girl, who behaved nobly all through. I asked

Mrs. Jefferies if she had made a will. She said: "No, surely I would have been useless. We have nothing. A woman, single and strong as I am, could rough it, but if something can be done for the children, I shall be thankful.

One of the last entries in his note-book was:

"Three great giants against me—disease, despair and poverty." If any of his Ameri-

The Work Done by the Fresh Air Mission—Totals of 1885-'86-'87 Compared—The Managers' Pest—Visitors Who Toil Not but Eat—A New Rule—The Excursion to Montezuma To-Day—Orphans' Excursion August 20.

The first regular Mission excursion this summer was on July 1, and 600 children were taken for a ride upon the river. On the 5th of July but 500 took advantage of the wonderful opportunity to breathe fresh air. On the 12th there were 5,000 on board the excursion, and the weather was so good that the landing for Wilson's Grove. On the 19th Dennis P. Slattery had the pleasure of counting 2,000 who took advantage of his generosity. There were 5,000 on the excursion of July 26, and 1,800 on August 2. Last Tuesday there were but 1,500, as the day was cool. The low temperature this morning caused the number to be as low as 1,070. This would make the number for the month of August 18,880. In 1880 the number was but 19,911; in 1885, 14,575. The distribution in 1885 was as follows: The first excursion was given on July 30, when there were 1,200 children taken on the excursion. On August 10 there were 1,800; on August 11, 1,000; on August 10; 400 on August 14, as there was rain that day; 2,000 on August 28; 3,000 on August 21; 700 on September 28; 500 on orphans' day.

The distribution for 1888 was amongst eight excursions, beginning on July 27, and ending on August 8, a rainy day; 1,000 on August 10; 3,700 on August 11; 1,000 on August 12; 1,000 on orphans' day, August 11, 1,000. There were night in 1886, and eight times that in 1887.

 This is the good that has been done by the mission of the infant school. The children, like the infants were "weighed on," as they were called, and the mothers were "weighed off," when their little lungs had been inflated with good fresh air. Fervently, and with a good deal of energy, and thoroughly, and perhaps the figures given are somewhat exaggerated.
 The Chouteau this morning was tied to the south end of the station and Coffey, to the north end of the station. The children and mothers found it without difficulty. They could not find the bridge or an elevator pile at the foot of the bridge, but the distance was not so great as it seems to be for those to travel who really want to go. Every one of the children was a good deal of a lady, whose only happiness in life is the weekend. They were all well, and the mother lady, bustling in spite of age and fat, good-humored and would be talkative had nature not been so good. She shakes hands with every one.

THE REMARKS OF THE "PEER."
The women were all of various tones said to their friends, "Come and help us. The friends did come like the experience. I grew quite a list of what are called visitors for all the river excursions that would be good for the poor children. The visitors' list has got so long that this is a long list. There may be good reason to stop it. J. H. Barnard, and when we do so, one will be admitted on the boat except on presentation of these cards."

The gentlemen who have stood at the gangway, and others have tried to make this change. As the nicely dressed ladies have been accepted and the others have been refused and told that the excursion was for the poor children, the reply would be, and while the ladies take the boat, the others will go with me. I shall not have the right to invite any one, the female would be past him. The ladies would be past him. The women on the boat. Few of these women bring

An Entertainment Yesterday at the Park Condemned—A Desecration of Obligation—Father Warns His Followers—The Knights of America Sanctioned by the Archbishop—The Priest's Position Explained by a Prominent Knight Talks.

There was a nice little lawn party at the man's Park yesterday afternoon. It was the bridegroom's party, and the knights of America and was decorated about and from every standpoint was decent. But yet it was the cause of considerable commotion in the city.

The commotion probably not amount to so much were it not for the feeling between the English-speaking and German Catholics.

The widespread discussion concerning alleged slights put upon the German Catholic authorities. In the course of the service at St. Michael's yesterday, the month of the street and Lucas Sunday, the party to be held

Father Tuohy, a spiritual director of the Branch, said he did not like to see the Branch, and he did not like to see the Archbishop. He was expelled from the prohibition of the Plenary Council of Baltimore for his conduct in the Branch. But a little while after he was expelled from the diocese of New York. I asked him if he could give me a letter of introduction to the party. He advised me to go to the party and to be sure to get a letter of introduction from the party. There was a nice little lawn party at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon. It was given by St. Bridget's branch of the Catholic Knights of America and was decorously conducted and from every standpoint was a success. But it was the cause of a considerable commotion in Catholic circles. The commotion probably would not amount to so much were it not that the feeling between the English-speaking and the German Catholics has been intensified by the recent widespread discussion concerning the alleged slight put upon the Germans by the Catholic authorities in the case of the services at St. Nicholas' German Church, nineteenth street and Lucas avenue, Sunday, the party to be held on the next day was referred to. Yesterday, being the Feast of the Assumption, was a holy day of obligation, and for this reason the party fell under the condemnation of Father Schaefer and his assistant, Father Tournant. At the low mass Sunday morning Father Tournant, who is by attending the party last evening, the action of the party was discussed. The party was the burden of the conversation. The party was the burden of the conversation. The party was the burden of the conversation.

FATHER SCHAEFER'S VIEW. He gave his views on the matter quite freely although deploring the party. He thought that anything said about the complication would result only in a further discussion. He thought that the party was a day of obligation. He thought that the party was a day of obligation. He thought that the party was a day of obligation.

ALICE MAY DEAD.

THE WELL-KNOWN AND POPULAR OPERA SINGER PASSES AWAY.

Her Death Occurs at 7:30 This Morning—Remains of Her Career—A Life Well Marked at One Time by Brilliant Success—Her First Appearance in St. Louis—Her Last Illness—The Funeral.

Alice May, the well-known and popular opera singer who has been with the New York Bijou Opera Company at Thiel's Opera House, died at the City Hospital this morning at 7:30 o'clock. She has been ill for several weeks past at her rooms at 2008 Locust street, where she boarded, and was taken to the Hospital last night and placed in the female ward on the first floor, Lafayette avenue side of the Hospital. She was suffering terribly and was raving violently. She roused the people along the streets, as the carriage in which she was taken passed to the Hospital. She had her night, sang, called her husband's name, babbling incoherently, and laughed long at the quaint quips in her own brain. She died at 7:30 o'clock, and her remains were taken to the City Hospital this morning at 7:30 o'clock.

THE FIRST FOG.

The Humidity Reaches a High Figure To-Day—To-Day's Readings.

This morning the air was the wettest it has been for a month. When Assistant-Observer Linn looked at the bulb and made the calculation he found that the humidity was .81, against .77 yesterday, which was called a day of aqueous atmosphere. Once in July it was .81 about the first of the month. It is this diffused dampness that has made the day seem warmer than it really is. Instead of being up in the 80s, the signal service mercury has been among the 70s and 80s all day, starting at 70 at 8 a. m. against 76 yesterday, and only reaching 86 degrees at 2 p. m. against 82 yesterday.

The Confidence Pension Agent is Finally Run Down.

United States Commissioner Crawford to-day heard the case of the confidence man who was arrested last week by Detective Pat Lawler, for obtaining money from widows of soldiers on the pretense that he was a pension agent. When arrested the man refused to give his name, saying that he could be called "Richard Roe" or "John Doe," or any other name. To some of the victims he gave the name of George W. Wilbur, Robert F. Turner, or perhaps as they thought he was a relative of ex-Judge Turner. Detective Lawler reported to-day that he had run the man down, and that he was a confidence man who had obtained money from widows of soldiers on the pretense that he was a pension agent. STREET-SPRINKLING is here to stay.

YESTERDAY was a bright day for Ireland as well as for St. Louis.

LELAND STANFORD is engaged in the arduous task of making a mole-hill out of a mountain.

THE concern manifested by our morning contemporaries for the success of street-sprinkling is touching indeed.

MAHONEY is about to publish a circular to the voters of Virginia, and the voters will issue a circular to MAHONEY on election day.

THE Street Commissioner has only two inspectors of street-sprinkling, but the POST-DISPATCH has at least seventy-six thousand.

HOME rule is on top in England and Me Lud HENRY GOSWENOR is weeping scalding, bitter tears on the neck of his dual papa.

Nobody expected the sprinkling contractors to comply fully with their contracts the first day, but the contractors are strong enough to hold them.

It is pleasant to note that our esteemed morning contemporaries are paying attention to the subject of street-sprinkling which they have hitherto ignored.

The lesson of the Tory defeat in Cheshire is that the Tories have failed to settle the Irish question and the people are tired of their repeated failures.

The time has come when no "yellow-dog majority" is safe. The friends of such a majority must watch it constantly if they hope to keep it from shrinking.

St. Louis did not get all the sprinkling it should have yesterday, but it is safe to say that there was more sprinkling done than on any previous day in its history.

It will take two or three days to get the new street-sprinkling idea under full headway. In the mean while the fossils who opposed it are requested not to interfere.

There is not much use in inventing ballot-boxes that can't be stuffed. Let some genius invent a more expeditious way of putting ballot-box stuffers in the penitentiary.

If Lord SALISBURY has any doubts of his inability to satisfy the English people with his Irish policy he can obtain valuable information by studying the North-wich election returns.

Those who have complaints to make about the manner in which the streetsprinkling contracts are carried out are requested to make them specific and definite and to sign their names.

The success of our street-sprinkling cannot be belittled by the papers that opposed the scheme with the opposition of silence till its assured success shamed them into seeming friendliness.

The people of St. Louis will now learn the gracious influence of a generous system of street-sprinkling. They already know the influence of a pertinacious and unassisted newspaper in securing the sprinkling.

STEVIE DORSEY thinks that CONKING would make a strong candidate. On the other hand, CONKING thinks that DORSEY would make a very strong candidate—stronger, indeed, than a supernumerary side of Limburger cheese.

This false and misleading account of yesterday's street-sprinkling which appeared in to-day's morning papers are chiefly an exhibition of puerile spite and jealousy. The general sprinkling of the streets is a POST-DISPATCH triumph, and is already a marked success, nor can any amount of contemporary lying deceive a grateful community about a fact that is so patent to all.

SINCE the Cheshire election the average Liberal-Unionist feels like an English Hogwarts, so manifest is the general desire for him to go quickly. The idea of English Democracy will overwhelm the political prospects of all politicians who refuse to float with it.

THERE is no Indian war going on. A Colorado sheriff is trying to arrest a gang of Indian thieves and murderers and he may need the assistance of the Government. There is no protest for Eastern philanthropy to interest itself in COLOR-ADO and his band of outlaws.

JOHN SHERMAN's Ohio friends are vehemently denying the charge that the Toledo indorsement of SHERMAN was a joke, while some of the loquacious Blaine men insist that it was a joke. As the interesting debate progresses the value of the indorsement grows beautifully less.

ST. JOHN says that no man who votes against Prohibition can be a Christian.
The great apostle of temperance will probably retract this when he finds that he is asserting, by clear implication, that BEN BUTLER and the editor of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette are not Christians.

It is no surprise to any one to find in the morning papers statements from "prominent officials at the City Hall," and other officials to the effect that municipal streetsprinkling is "a fraud and a failure." We commend the cautious reticence with which the prominent officials succeed in suppressing their names.

THE 1,369 veterans in the Soldiers' Home at Leavenworth have cordially invited the President to visit them while on his western trip. Now let TUTTLE and the palsy brigade take the veterans in hand and give them a severe scolding.
The "Palsy, Paralysis and Purgatory" idea of 1887 seems to be as unlucky and ill-omened as the "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" idea of 1884.

SECRETARY WHITNEY has let the contractors for the construction of five new vessels. Two of these will be built by the assignees of JOHN ROACH, and this should moderate the fury of those cranks who insist that Mr. WHITNEY is still trying to asperse the memory and damage the estate of the only ship-builder that ever contributed $100,000 to a Republican campaign fund. BILL CHANDLER will get into the Senate in time to supervise most of the work on these new vessels, and, with his assistance, the work ought to be well done.

It will be a cold day when Senator RIN-DLERGER tries to ring another chestnut bell on Judge NEWMAN. The nondescript Senator unfortunately mistook a Virginia court-room for the National Senate Chamber, and while laboring under this hallucination he "pulled the wrong coin by the tail." RINDLERGER should have put himself under Judge NEWMAN's tutelage and supervision before beginning his Senatorial career; it would have exercised a refining effect on his manners and behavior. In the meantime, RINDLER-BERGER is still in jail, comforting himself by BYRON.

HENRY S. IVES, EX-FINANCIER.

True and Thrilling Story of Henry S. Ives, Ex-Financier.

Who Went Up Like a Rocket and Down Like a Stick.

It is a Very Curious Tale and Quaintly Like That of Ferdinand Ward at Many Points.

The Story of Henry S. Ives, Ex-Financier, Who Came to Wall Street Five Years Ago and Failed the Other Day for $15,000,000—District Attorney Martine Says Nothing Will Be Done Before the September Grand-Jury Meets.

From the New York World.

A gambler who deals with marked cards in a game with "chumps" and gets away with the chumps' money is looked upon generally as rather an able man in his profession. A gambler who tries that game on a public exchange is exceedingly apt to have a puncture made in him in a vital spot.

The Wall Street "banker and broker" who confines himself to dealing in stocks, grows rich and is highly respected. If he puts up jobs and his associates in the business he is disreputable and very naughty. This may explain why the Stock Exchange forgot for a moment to preserve its usual quiet dignity when the assignment of Henry S. Ives & Co. was announced and actually yelled for joy. It was not certain of maintaining its own interests so long as the new Napoleon kept teaching new tricks to the veteran financiers.

Mr. Ives is a gentleman very well known in Wall Street. He is a man of some nothing disagreeable has been said. He is a married man with children. He is a resident of Point Lookout, near Long Island, and is supposed to have put up with the residence at Point Lookout. He is a son of Prof. R. Doreman, a young fellow of about 35 years of age, and is a very capable and energetic man. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Stock Exchange in all its dealings.

Whether it was intended to be so or not, this turned out to be a very convenient arrangement. Ives went into his first big game with a very small amount of money, which gave him his first marking as a black sheep. If he had been a member of the Exchange, he would have been branded and driven out. But he had been a member of the inside to attend to the business there, while he skulked around on the outside. But the Stock Exchange seems to have had a virtuous spasm about that time, and it was reported that the suspension of Ives was due to the fact that he was a member of the inside to attend to the business there, while he skulked around on the out-
